Nostalgic Nirvana!

By Joyce Scarbrough

I had this book in the fourth grade and was delighted to find it available used on Amazon.com! It was just as wonderful as I remembered it and my kids love it, too!

My mother had this book when she was little.

By A Customer

Let me start out by saying that my mother had this book when she was little. She loved this book and still remembers many of these little verses. Such as: "You love yourself, You think you're grand, You go to the movies and hold your hand, You put your arm around your waist, And when you get fresh, You slap your face!"

"Grandma has a habit, Of chewing in her sleep, She chews on Grandpa's whiskers, And thinks it's shredded wheat."

1960's,Sacramento, CA Allison Elm. Rio Linda

By Akbar

For some reason I picked this book out to buy from the scholastic book sale back in the mid-1960's when I was in the 3rd or fourth grade in Sacramento, CA. I never got it or lost it soon after I got it, I know that something happened. Kids! I was able to read a lot of it and that tells me the kind of person I was even back then. The only other book I remember reading in elementary school, was baseball pals. I checked it out at least 5 times and it was overdue all the time! I always liked witticism and rhymes and the way words could do things that elicited feelings and emotions. I love words to this day and have written and published poetry. Kind of says that we do not change that much in our lives even after almost 50 years!
